

COVID-19 Response

CYFS programs provided services in over 1400 families' homes during this pandemic year, and over 43,000 telehealth services to over 4000 kids and families.

78% of youth and families indicated that the services they received during COVID were helpful. One parent put it this way: "my family needs were still met as efficiently as possible during COVID."

Residential and Crisis Bed Programs worked incredibly hard to keep doors open while managing significant staffing shortages brought on by the pandemic.

In the last ten years, a rising number of Vermont children ages 0-5 have been in DCF custody. CYFS programs promote healing and attachment with evidence-based practices such as Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT), Child Parent Psychotherapy (CPP), Coping Cat for anxiety, and Attachment, Self-Regulation, and Competence (ARC).

Robust Community-Based Children, Youth, and Family Services

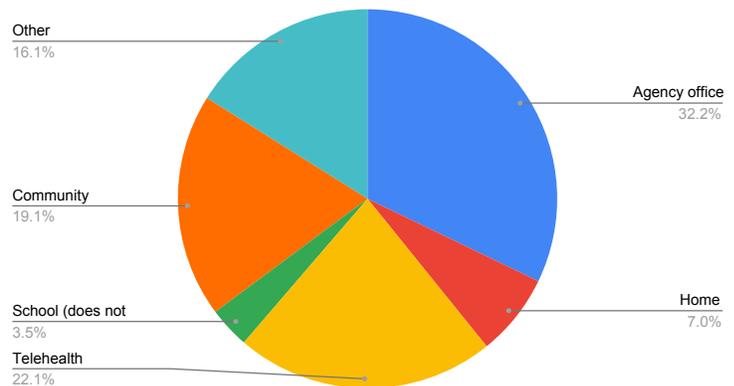

DESCRIPTION

VCP network agencies provide a wide array of evidence-based practices in home, office, and community-based services to children and families who are struggling with mental health challenges such as anxiety, depression and self-harm, as well as behavioral challenges that may result from the impacts of trauma and other adverse childhood experiences. Network agencies take an individualized, family-centered approach, working together to develop treatment plans that address the child and family's therapeutic goals as well as their needs related to social determinants of health.

REACH

- Agencies provided care to over 9,000 children, youth, and families in FY21. Over 2300 clients were ages seven or under.
- The average client and family received 22 services, with an average of 85 hours of service per client.
- 56% of clients received care coordination, linking families with school, healthcare, and social service partners.

Our Staff Meet with Kids and Families Where It Works for Them

"MY COUNSELOR IS NICE AND HELPFUL"

- 83% of youth and families reported that the services they received made a difference.
- 88% of youth and families indicated that the services they received were right for them.

RMHS CCN Child & Family Clinicians Chynah Boise (left) and Laqunda Nystrom (right) host a pride-themed children's story hour in June.